Acknowledgments

This book is dedicated to all the hard working, over-taxed and under appreciated public employees who find the patience to put these concepts into day-to-day practice. These are optimistic people of good will, who, over the past 20 years, provided a learning laboratory for LL Decker & Associates. Without our sponsors and clients we never would have had the opportunity to apply our craft.

I want to acknowledge several of my colleagues and associates:

- Theresa Gunn, in 1996, helped write the original training manual on this subject documenting community involvement techniques.
- Ruth Yabes, PhD and faculty member at Arizona State University provided invaluable critique in preparing this second edition.
- Lou Weschler, PhD, now a retired professor from Arizona State University and my beloved mentor, introduced me to the power of qualitative research.
- Teresa Makinen, a good friend and great business manager supplied continuous logistical support.
- Jeanine Decker, my wife, gave me the extra time and encouragement I needed during some very trying times. Because of her I finally finished this second edition.
